Bail: 'Tremendous Potential Coach: Bowl Bid 'Frosting In Teaching by Tele-lecture' On Cake' for OU Football

Omaha University's tele-lecturing idea breezed through one of its toughest tests this week.

OU's Eppley Conference Center served as the hub for the nationwide network.

Listening posts, each manned by dozens of college and university officials, were located at the universities of Washington, California, Colorado, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, Marquette, Syracuse, Maryland and St. Louis' Washington University.

The National Tele-lecture Conference was an attempt to prove that the telephone can help solve education's problem of lopsided professor-student ratios.

"I think it was a tremendous demonstration of the potential in using the tele-lecture as a teaching device. It is a tremendous tool that really hasn't been explored yet," President Milo Bail said.

Among those speaking were White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger, FCC Chairman Newton Minow, New York Metropolitan Museum of Art Director James Rorimer, painter Andrew Wyeth, space expert Willey Ley, National Weather Satellite Center Director Dr. Fred Singer, Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriner and United States Archivist Dr. Wayne Gorver.

Also speaking were the ambassadors to the United States from Britain, Mexico, France and West Germany.

Three Newsmen Head Discussion

The public is not being "spoon fed" the news and reporters are not being "screened off" from the sources any more now than they have been in the past, an audience of the National Tele-Lecture Conference was told Monday.

Heading an informal panel discussion, "The News Business," were NBC commentators David Brinkley, Chet Huntley and Floyd Kalber.

"Is it a fair estimate that we (the public) are being spoon fed the news and you (newsmen) are being screened off from governmental news sources?" the trio was asked.

Replied Brinkley: "No, sir, that is not a fair estimate. Obviously, there are some things that have to be kept secret."

"That was a silly statement made by the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Arthur Sylvestre) that news is being used as a weapon. It's always been that way and always will be."

"There is some covering and concealing of legitimate news. There always has been. But in the course of a few days or few weeks, it always gets out."

Said Huntley:

"If a reporter will use a little energy and pound the pavements, he will get his story. Rarely does a government information officer withhold news when he's being asked for it."

Malkowsky to Speak

The Biology Club will hold its monthly meeting Dec. 13, at 3:30 in room 344 of the Administration Building.

The meeting will feature City Naturalist, James Malkowsky, who will speak on the biology of the area.

"Whenever there is the suspicion (by the news media) that the flow of news is being interrupted, we scream and we scream very loudly. That is good."

"When government realizes there may be some infringement on freedom of the press and freedom of information, information keeps flowing freely."

Said Kalber:

"Occasionally some newsmen keep very quiet when they come up with a story that should be kept secret (for national security reasons)."

Kalber cited the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion as an example.

"Peter Hackus (NBC newsmen) and the New York Times knew about the Bay of Pigs story several days before it broke," he said.

"But obviously it was in the best interest of the country to keep it quiet," he said, "and they did."

By TOM ASH

Before boarding the bus for Oklahoma City and the All-Sports bowl Thursday morning, head football coach Al Caniglia said the team is physically and mentally ready to do what they're making the trip for . . . to win.

Caniglia said the bowl bid was "the frosting on the cake of the rejuvenation of football at Omaha U. Beating Pittsburgh and winning the CIC conference championship was great, but this game is the fitting climax. Now we can add a little whipped cream by beating East Central Oklahoma."

The coach said the layoff between the end of the regular season and the start of bowl practice didn't seem to hurt the boys. He added, "they have been hitting real hard, and their timing has returned."

Impressed with Bowl

Talking about the All-Sports Bowl, Caniglia said, "Originally we wanted a bid to the NAIA Camelia Bowl, but the scouting trip to Oklahoma City really impressed us." The Oklahoma City All-Sports Association, which is promoting the bowl, has done a great job, and the two-year old bowl game should become one of the top small college post season attractions in a few years."

He added that the people of Oklahoma City are really enthusiastic about the game, and a capacity crowd of over 15,000 is expected.

Several of the players also had comments before leaving.

Carl Meyers . . .

"I feel it's a great way to spread the good will of the midwest to the southwest. This bowl is a terrific boost for the football team and athletic program at OU. And the victory we will get will help to keep the University in the national spotlight."

Paul Blazevich

"The Yanks beat the southerners in the Civil War, and we're going down there and bury those rebels."

Dave (Hoot) Gibson

"I predict a two-touchdown victory for OU. Everybody's ready, and we want this one."

Wayne Backes

"I couldn't be happier with the opportunity to go to the bowl. We're going to bring home a victory."

Lee Milner

"This is a good opportunity to increase the status of Omaha University, and I'm happy to be able to make the trip my first year at OU."

Duane Salak

"We'll win. I think going to this bowl is the perfect way to end my career at OU."

No Pushover

East Central Oklahoma isn't bringing any pushover team to the bowl. They have a 9-2 record with defeats by the top team in the NAIA, Central Oklahoma, and Delta State of Mississippi, the last game of the season. That game was played without their two top halfbacks and a starting lineman.

Coach Elvan George is one of the most successful and respected coaches in Oklahoma. He took over East Central in 1959 when they were floundering and built them into a powerhouse. He was considered the dean of Oklahoma high school coaches at Ada, Oklahoma, high school before that.

His teams hold the state record for consecutive games won, state high school championships, all-state players, all-America players and countless others.

The Tigers operate from what George calls the "plain vanilla." That's straight ahead power football.

Halfbacks Out?

East Central's chances are a question mark. The two top halfbacks, Larry Ward and Jerry Bettis missed the last two ball games because of injuries.

Ward is the Oklahoma Collegiate Conference's best halfback. He was the league's top rusher (867 yards in 8 games) and scorer (92) points.

Bettis was the second leading rusher and scorer before he was injured.

They may be ready tomorrow.

Linebacker Ras McAdams, called the best all-around linebacker on the squad, also missed the Delta game, but will probably be ready for OU.

The team as a whole is a big, tough, veteran outfit.

With a good crop of returning lettermen, George added four outstanding transfers and one cool freshman.

The transfers are: H. O. Estes, a first team tackle at Oklahoma University before leaving; Roy Peck, a 220-pound linebacker who was a first stringer at Oklahoma State; Ras McAdams, who started at Oklahoma University as a sophomore before going into the service; and Jim Milhauser, a second teamer at Oklahoma U. before joining East Central.

The freshman is quarterback Mike Wood. He was an Oklahoma all-stater who started three years on championship teams at Ada high.

So our boys have their work cut out for them, but as Paul Blazevich said, "When they get done playing us Yanks, they'll know they've been in a ball game."

Susan Rester Tops 17 to Be 1963 Queen; Runners-up: Malanie, Gail

The Administration Auditorium was turned into a wonderland of glittering lights and glowing beauties Wednesday afternoon for the 1963 Tomahawk Beauty Contest.

Susan Faith Rester topped the group of 17 aspirants to be named the 1963 Tomahawk Beauty Queen. Malanie Jeub was the first runner-up and Gail Browning was second runner-up. Kathleen Jorgensen and Nancy Kansler were fourth and fifth respectively.

Susan, a junior majoring in elementary education, represented Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. She is a transfer student from Sioux Falls College. While attending Sioux Falls she was named Miss National Guard. The 5 foot 2, brown-eyed beauty is 20 years old and plans to teach after graduation.

Malanie Represented ZTA

Malanie is a junior majoring in journalism. She represented Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and is 20 years old. Malanie is a member of Student council, Student Board of Publications, Angels Flight, and editor of the 1963 TOMAHAWK. She intends to go into some form of mass communications after graduation, but she is undecided about the exact field.

After graduation in 1964 Gail plans on a teaching career. She is a 20-year-old junior majoring in elementary education. Gail is currently serving as pledge trainer for Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. Her other activities include Angels Flight, Cheerleading, and Inter-pep council. Last spring she was among the top ten in the Miss Omaha Contest. Yesterday Gail was one of 48 OU students honored at a luncheon for Ak-Sar-Ben scholarship recipients.

Kathy represented Zeta Tau

Alpha sorority. She is a 19-year old sophomore. She is a cheerleader, a member of Inter-pep council, and Courtesy chairman for her sorority.

Nancy—Current Miss Center

Nancy was entered by Alpha Xi Delta sorority. She is a freshman and majoring in Home Economics. This summer she was awarded the title of Miss Center.

Judges for the contest included Doris Boetel, secretary-treasurer of Industrial Electric; Kermit Hansen, vice-president of the United States National Bank; and J. R. Townsend, sales manager of the Chrysler-Imperial Division of Briley Motors.

The four escorts were Lynn

McCallum, Arlo Grafton, Mike

Landers and Dennis Madigan.

OU Students Pay 60% Of Total Tuition Cost

"Omaha University students pay a larger share of their total cost than do students in other universities," a brochure published at OU shows.

University records reveal OU's income is derived 60 per cent from student tuition. On the national average tuition covers only 20 per cent of universities' incomes.

At the University of Nebraska only 15 per cent of NU's income is derived from student tuition.

Omaha taxpayers contribute 36 per cent of OU's income via a two-mill levy on property. Four per cent of Omaha U's income comes from miscellaneous sources.

During the past eight years OU enrollment has increased on an average of 700 per year (15 per cent); tuition has averaged an increase of 125 thousand dollars per year (20 per cent).

During the same period, the average increase in tax income has been 17 thousand per year (two per cent)—which covers the salaries of two associate professors.

"OU is not tax supported," President Milo Bail said, "it is only tax assisted."

OU Will Bid For State Aid

For the first time Omaha University, in cooperation with the state's four junior colleges, will attempt to get state financial aid in the 1963 session of the Unicameral.

The plan would channel $180 per year to OU for each freshman and sophomore student enrolled at the University.

Nebraska's four junior colleges—Fairbury, McCook, Norfolk and Scottsbluff—would receive a similar amount.

OU is cooperating with the junior colleges in backing the proposed legislation.

"This would be one of the rare instances of Omaha-out-state cooperation," President Milo Bail noted.

Assuming the state lawmakers approve the plan, it could mean 360 thousand dollars per year for the OU coffers, Dr. Bail said.

The state-aid plan would not affect OU's status as a municipal university, he said.

Robert G. Simmons, Scottsbluff superintendent of schools, was writing the proposed bill.

Grain of Sand Now for Sale At Book Store

Omaha University's literary publication, "Grain of Sand," went on sale this week and Bookstore Manager Ben Koenig said it "has been very well received."

"About half" of the 90 copies available in the Bookstore were sold within two days, he said.

Stephen Schicker, chairman of the publication's editorial board, called the latest edition "excellent reading."

It features "varied styles of writing from humor to tragedy," he said.

Some 300 copies have been printed and several were sent to various high schools and colleges in the midwest, he said, "as an example of some of OU's literary works."

Initiated by English Department Chairman Ralph Wardle in 1955, "Grain of Sand" sells for 45 cents per copy.

Dr. Wardle called the latest edition "a very good magazine because of its variety and scope."

It contains not only short stories and poems, he noted, but also two plays and an essay.

Literary student Art Stevens called the publication "a dynamic piece of writing, well worth reading."

Serving on the editorial board were Shicker, V. E. Barnet, J. A. Davis, Robert Hemenway and Michael Millea.

The cover was designed by Ward Schumaker.

Despite her limited time, Jeanne teaches piano lessons to children, sews for herself and her children, is interested in art and does some painting and has done some architectural illustration work.

Jeanne Rogers manages them all.

Jeanne will graduate from OU in January with a Bachelor of General Education degree. She has gone to college a total of four years but there was a six year lapse between her first two years and last two years while she was having her last three children.

Her oldest children are twins Ronald and Donald who are 11 years old; then comes Ann who is 10, and her youngest, twins, Keith and Carol who are eight years old.

Jeanne says that all her children seem musically inclined and they all play instruments.

"I won't push them into music; when they're ready they'll get with it on their own," the singing mother said.

The job that keeps the family going and keeps Jeanne in school is a six nights a week engagement with her combo at Anthony's Panther Room at the Center.

Her group called "Jeanne Rogers and her Friends" consists of bass, drum and sax players and Jeanne as pianist and vocalist.

"We play jazz but not the real cool type, kind of in between. Actually we can play about anything."

Twenty eight years old, Jeanne, has played the piano since she was four; she was in

$2.40 Per Hr. To 40c Game To 35c Game

The price of bowling at Omaha University has been dropped to 35 cents per line.

The latest price change was prompted because the four lanes were not being used to full capacity, Game Room Manager Bob Haselton said.

Earlier, the keggling tab was changed from $2.40 per hour to 40 cents per line because of light use of the alleys.

Checked by a representative of the American Bowling Congress, the lanes were found to be in good shape, Haselton said.

He added that Bill Bunetta, the champion bowler who appeared in the Student Center a few weeks ago, said, "You couldn't ask for better alleys."

Mr. Haselton said the slow period of bowling is at the first of the week when the alleys average about 10 persons per day, but at the end of the week there are close to 50 persons using the lanes in a single day, the choir while attending Central High, and started singing professionally in 1955 with the Cliff Dudley Band.

Despite her limited time, Jeanne teaches piano lessons to children, sews for herself and her children, is interested in art and does some painting and has done some architectural illustration work.

Something that has helped her in her education was a scholarship she received in September of 1961 worth $200. This was given to her through the Omaha Chapter of the "Links," a club for Negro college women.

Jeanne said that when she came back for her last two years of college she planned to be a teacher so she could be with her children more but found she was too fond of music so she plans to continue with that after her graduation.

"With all I have to do, my grades have dropped some and my housework suffers but the children help a lot," said Jeanne. About the only time she has to study is when the children aren't home and on Sundays.

In regard to her education, Jeanne said, "Even though I'm continuing with my music and won't get much practical use of my education, I feel I'll be a better mother because of it."

Rester Picked Beauty Queen

Jim Leslie, President of Student Council, served as the master of ceremonies for the afternoon.

Barbara Shradar, last year's Beauty Queen and a member of Zeta Tau Alpha, presented the first two runners-up with silver bracelets.

Contest Committee

Barbara, Paul V. Peterson, head of the journalism department, Jane Andersen, art instructor, Elizabeth Hill, dean of women, Donald Pflasterer, dean of students, Dr. Edwin Clark, head of the speech department, and C. H. Bush also of the speech department made up the Contest Committee.

Other entrants were: Patricia Blackman, Linda Hallquist, Sandra Hancock, Mary Lou Hawk, Phyllis Jamieson, Judy Jensen, Maureen Matthews, Patricia McFarland, Laima Runcis, Diane Shannon, Sandy Smith, and Susan Stall.

Dark Days Coming With Finals Approach

By Allan Johnson

Dark, dismal and dreary (in alphabetical order) might well describe the outlook for the approaching final stretch of this semester.

There are approximately five weeks left before the Ouampi Room is left virtually empty in preference to hard chairs and soft beds where studying is done at home.

Extra oil will be poured into the midnight lamps.

Extra boxes of No-Doz will be placed in easy reach.

Warnings to younger brothers and sisters to stay away from "restricted areas" will be given in advance of the trying times.

Parents will look at their offspring and note the hurriedness of their manner and wish the approaching dilemma would not come.

It's true that the period of final exams is hard on the people around the student, but alas, it's much harder on the student. Most students, that is.

For some of the class room occupants books will be opened for the first time during the semester. For others, the rigid demands of studying will be a continuation of what's been practiced all during the semester.

But for all, it will be trying. The pain of headache, neuralgia and neuritis will be a common complaint. There will be upset stomachs and that ever-present stomach acid will present its problems.

Most businessmen that suffer from ills of this nature may, because of their financial stability, stop off at the corner drugstore and purchase tins of little goodies that soothe the head and tummy.

But because of the student's instability of finance he cannot make purchase of these cures — after all, those nickels must go in the parking meters.

The quickest remedy is to begin studying now. This statement may abhor some, but what else can be done?

Any student can flunk now and avoid the rush or drop back ten and punt, but it takes stomach (or stomach acid?) to begin now.

One other remedy might be to start parking in Elmwood Park now until after finals so as to save those nickels. Then the student can join the businessman at the corner drugstore.

Four Shelters At Omaha U.

"Omaha University has four fallout shelters located below ground level in each building," said Kirk Naylor, dean of administration.

The shelters have not been stocked with food or water and do not have a special ventilation system.

The Civil Defense Administration may stock the shelters and provide an auxiliary ventilation system, Dean Naylor said.

Orange and black signs are affixed above the entrance to each shelter. The signs were installed by the Civil Defense Administration.

The shelter in the Administration building has a capacity for 220 students, the library shelter will accommodate 116, the Student Center shelter 75 and the Applied Arts shelter 150.

"Fallout shelters are primarily for people caught outside on the campus during a nuclear warning," Dean Naylor said.

Authentic decorations, such as Geisha Girl dolls and a brass incense burner, contributed to the oriental atmosphere. Guests and club members were seated on cushions at low tables—a mere eight inches from the floor—in true Chinese style. Floating chrysanthemums in oriental bowls enhanced the table setting.

Imported Chinese Tea preceded the main course, which included Chicken Sub-Jum Chow Mein on Chinese Noodles, Pungent Sweet and Sour Pork, Egg Foo-young and Fried Rice. Gingered Compote of Pears and Mandarins, Fortune Cookies and Chinese Almond Wafers completed the menu.

The food committee, under the chairmanship of Donna Faulkner, planned, prepared and served the dinner.

Guests at the dinner were Dr. and Mrs. Milo Bail; Dean and Mrs. C. W. Helmstadter; Miss Margaret Killian, home economics department head; Miss Carolyn Kündel, assistant professor of home economics, and Mrs. James Goodrich and Mrs. Albert Hedelund, part-time instructors in home economics.

Colony to Be Initiated Here

A new local social colony, Delta Rho Gamma, is being established here on campus. Delta Rho Gamma was formally accepted into the Greek system by Interfraternity Council at a meeting Tuesday, Dec. 4. Petitioned members of the colony were represented at the IFC meeting by Tony Ciullo, Tom Frasier, Bill Hutcheson and Tom Murphy.

Plans are being made to affiliate with a national organization in the fall of 1963.

20 New Members

Before the formal charter is submitted to IFC in February, Delta Rho Gamma plans to add 20 new members to the present roster of 32.

The members of the newly-established group said: "We feel that the present Greek system at the University of Omaha is well-developed and well-organized, but there is room for a large degree of improvement. We are thankful for the help we have received from IFC and the student body and hope this will be continued."

How does it feel to reign as "Miss Omaha of 1962," "All Sports Bowl Queen" and "Miss Polaroid?" Sophomore Sandra Hancock feels "it's a great honor!"

She emphasized that these three titles keep her busy, but she "certainly isn't complaining."

As Miss Omaha, Sandra is an Omaha Greeter and her main job is to greet dignitaries and VIP's visiting the city. Besides this she makes speeches, personal appearances and models.

Winning third place in the "Miss Press Photographer" contest, Sandra is "Miss Polaroid." Her duties for this title include wearing a banner in department stores and taking pictures of customers.

Sandra is an art major and would like to draw for a newspaper or magazine after graduation.

Santas Unmask at Annual Xmas Dance

An all-school Christmas dance will be held in the Student Center Ballroom on Wednesday, Dec. 19, from 9 to 12 p.m.

Names of the mystery Santas will be announced, one from the faculty and one from the student body.

During intermission, a skit will be presented. Christmas carols will be sung and refreshments will be served.

Dud Kersey is chairman for the event, assisted by Malanie Jeub.

48 Receive Ak Scholarships Totaling 7200

Forty-eight Omaha University students were awarded Ak-Sar-Ben scholarships yesterday noon at a luncheon in the Student Center.

This is the third year that the scholarships have been given at OU. Each scholarship is worth $75 per semester; the total given to OU students was $7200.

Requirements for the scholarships include a good standing within the University and recommendation by the student's respective high school principal.

Although a "B" average is not required to earn the scholarship, most, if not all, of the students have "B" averages or above.

Mr. Donald Pflasterer, Dean of Student Personnel, emphasized, however, that this is not a "second rate" scholarship.

The retention rate of this scholarship is very high, Dean Pflasterer added. It can be earned by the student all through his academic career at the University. However, if a student fails to keep his scholarship, he is usually replaced by a person of the same sex from the same school, the Dean said.

Next year the number of Ak-Sar-Ben scholarships will be increased to 64.

Members of the administration, the King and Queen of Ak-Sar-Ben, Mr. A. F. Jacobson and Miss Kathy Reagan, and members of the Ak-Sar-Ben Board of Governors attended the luncheon.

LaLonde, Cady Capture Trophy

nament, Dec. 1 at Ames, Iowa. Cady and LaLonde won five out of six debates while losing only to Midland College out of a 32-team field.

'Raisin in the Sun' to Be Shown in SC

"Raisin in the Sun" will be shown next Monday night at 7:30 in the Student Center Ballroom.

Claudia McNeil, Sidney Portier and Ruby Dee star in the movie, which is the story of a poor Chicago South-side family.

Xmas Compositions Judged Thur., Dec. 13

The annual Christmas carol contest, sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha, will be held Thursday, Dec. 13, in the Student Center Ballroom. An informal tea will be held following the contest.

The deadline for submitting entries is Tuesday, Dec. 11. Applicants must register for the contest in the Music Building. A copy of the composition on music manuscript ditto paper must be turned in to Mr. Kermit Peters by Tuesday.

Any student carrying 12 credit hours at the University is eligible to participate.

Each composer will conduct his own number during the contest. The music submitted must be original. Words may be taken from any appropriate source. The length of the composition should be that of a typical Christmas carol.

Carols will be judged on originality, style of writing and lyric content.

The winning carol will be sung by the OU choir at the Christmas Convocation, and a plaque will be awarded to the winning composer at that time.

Bootstrappers Give To Goodfellow Fund

The Bootstrappers at OU have united. They are sponsoring a drive to donate money to the World-Herald Goodfellow fund.

A party held to solicit funds netted the group $256.27.

The goal for the drive is $1,100. Out of a potential of 600 donors, 150 bootstrappers have contributed. The total collected as of Wednesday, Dec. 5, at noon, was $474.37.

This leaves the group $625.63 short of the hoped-for amount.

The donation table will be set up on Monday, Dec. 10, in the Student Center to give bootstrappers "one more chance to become a part of the project," Project Chairman Walt Kennedy said.

Excitement Is Gone Scant 2 Days Later

By Sheri Hronek

The auditorium is silent. There is little evidence that two days ago a queen was crowned here. The days of nervous anticipation were ended as the Tomahawk Beauty Queen of 1963 was chosen.

Let's go back a few days—and a few years—and see how the girls prepared for the contest.

Preparation begins when groups are notified of the contest. Contestants are chosen and the activity begins.

Each girl represents her group—in more ways than one. There's a frantic search to borrow a formal to wear. One girl may loan gloves; another, shoes.

She may have something borrowed, but not necessarily something blue. In years past, red dresses were worn by three consecutive winners. It became a superstition to wear a red dress.

The day begins with interviews in the morning. The girls wear street dresses and whatever accessories they feel necessary. They are questioned individually—and privately—on hobbies, interests and anything the judges feel is important.

After the interviews they are guests at a luncheon. Following the luncheon, the contest moves to the Conference Center auditorium or this year, to the Administration Building Auditorium. There the girls parade across the stage in their street clothes and then again in their formals. Poise is the by-word here. One year a contestant stumbled while crossing the stage. Remaining calm, she bowed to the audience and continued across the stage. She was chosen Tomahawk Beauty Queen.

The contest has changed through the years. In the beginning, it had as many as 125 contestants and lasted until 7 p.m. Now the number in the contest is limited. Each group may enter four contestants.

In the past, the number of semi-finalists was gradually reduced to 90, 75, 50, 25 and on down until the finalists were named. Today the five finalists are named after all the girls have been on stage.

As the magic moment nears, the girls anxiously await the announcement. When it comes, flash-bulbs pop and cameras roll—a queen has been crowned. The queen is given a bouquet of roses and the two runners-up receive gifts.

Another queen reigns. The stage is empty until next year when the borrowing, the nerves and the excitement begin again.

Sociology Frat Meets Thur. to Hear Angus

Alpha Kappa Delta, honorary sociology fraternity, will meet Thursday, Dec. 13, at 3:30 p.m. in Room 312, S. C.

Professor Jack Angus will speak on "Juvenile Delinquency." Refreshments will be served following the meeting. Students are invited to attend.

Shradar Takes Title at Dance

Barbara Shradar, Zeta Tau Alpha, was named Tau Kappa Epsilon Sweetheart at the Red Carnation dance Friday, Nov. 30.

The annual dinner-dance was held at the Athletic Club from 8 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. The announcement of the fraternity's sweetheart was made during intermission at the dance.

Malanie Jeub, TKE Coral Queen, presented a bouquet of red roses to Barbara.

Sailors aboard Polaris submarines are growing their own lettuce, carrots and green peas far below the surface of the water. Five of the subs are now equipped with hydroponic garden kits. Lettuce is grown in three weeks, peas in four, carrots in four and one half.

Meet The Opposition

Fullback and defensive end, Glenn Wolfe. He was the Oklahoma Collegiate Conference's second leading rusher, despite the fact that he saw mostly defensive duty for the Tigers.

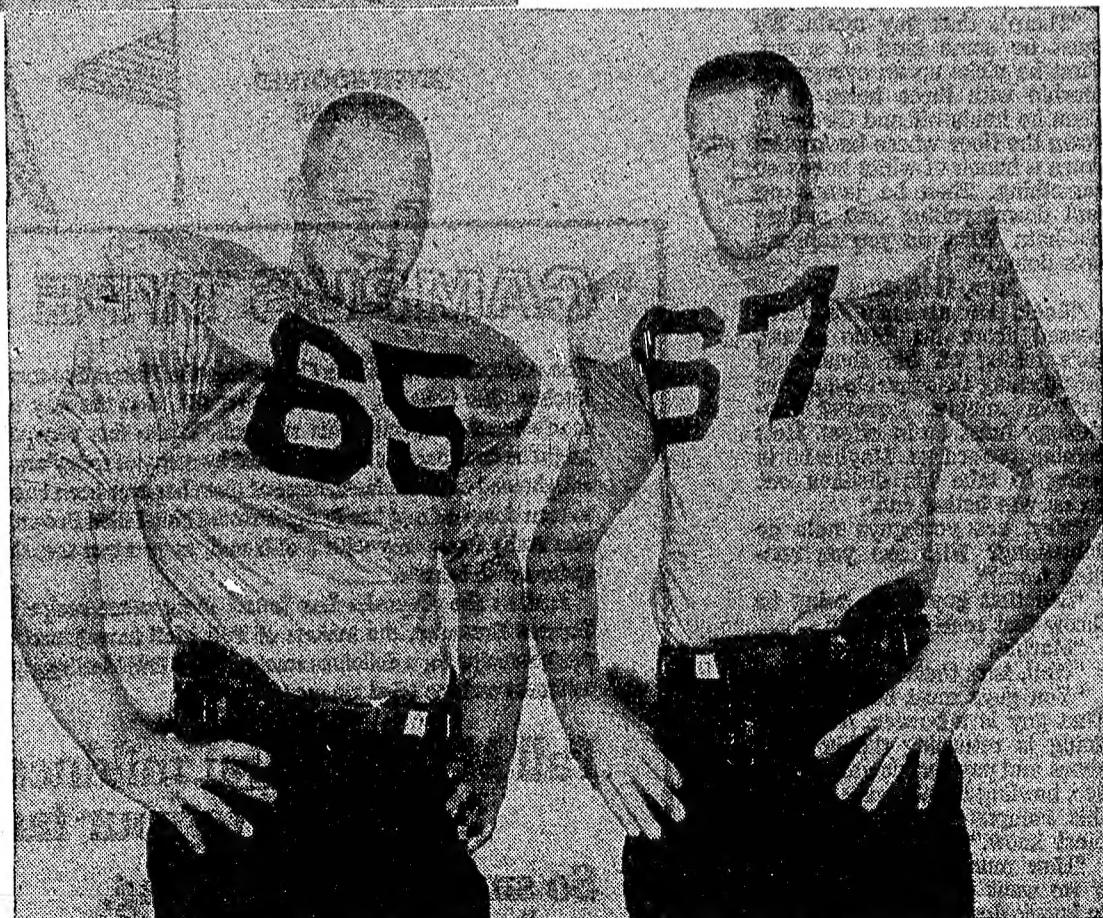

Larry Ward. This starting halfback runs the 100-yard dash in 9.7 and is the leading rusher and scorer in the conference. The senior averaged 8.7 yards per carry and 108.4 yards per game. He missed the last two games of the season because of injuries, but he may be ready for the Indians.

East Central Oklahoma

Henry Wells (left) and Farrel Large. These boys are a couple of old pros. Wells weighs 235 and was a 1957 prep all-American at Ada, Oklahoma, high school. He never played in a losing game while a three-year starter at Ada. Large also weighs 235 and is the other starting tackle. He is a 1958 graduate of Ada. That year the team had a 12-1 record.

Jim Mihlhauser (left) and H. O. Estes. Both are from Lindsay, Okla., played on the state championship team in 1958, and were all-state. They both went to the University of Oklahoma and transferred. Estes was a first team tackle at Norman, and Mihlhauser was second string guard before leaving.

Indian Basketballers Carry 1-1 Record Into Peru Game

Omaha University's basketballers opened the 1962-63 season on a bright note with their first opening game win in several seasons.

The victim was Simpson College of Indianola, Iowa, and the score was 72-55 on the Iowans court last Friday night.

Veteran Bruce Hunter paced the way with 18 points and 6-7 Larry Villnow followed with 15.

Touted Rookie Jon Lloyd, a transfer from Nebraska playing his first game for the Indians, was held to 6 points but contributed a fine floor game and an outstanding rebounding effort.

Soph Bernie Miller chipped in 11 points in a sub role and sharpshooter Paul Kaster had 13.

Hustling Indians

The Indians led all the way and displayed an aggressive defense which resulted in several ball thefts which paved the way for the early Omaha lead.

Freshman Charlie Meyers and Vet Joe Neuberger were the ballhawks keeping the pressure on the Redmen.

Things were not as bright at Fremont on Tuesday evening as the Warriors of Midland handed the Omahans their first defeat by a 70-58 margin.

A hustling defense and superior rebounding payed off for the smaller Warriors as they rushed to a 35-31 halftime lead.

Marbles, Bones Make Commotion in Ouampi

By Jim Mone

Two young men, gayly daunted in their college array walk stealthily through the student center to the school feeding lot, the OUampi room.

But wait. As they near the room, they see a lad getting a pair of shoes. "Do you sell shoes here?" they ask.

"No, but we rent them."

"That guy must be either awfully stupid or pretty poor if he comes to school first and then gets some shoes to wear," one boy said.

Hark. What yonder noise do they hear coming from that room? It sounds like thunder. But wait, why would that room produce such a racket?

What's that noise?

The two creep slowly toward the noise. "I hope it won't be something dangerous which would prevent our educational future."

"There's that guy again. He must be some kind of a nut. First he picks up an overgrown marble with three holes in it. Then he hauls off and throws it down the floor where he knocks down a bunch of white bones or something. Then he jumps up and down, yelling and pulling his hair. What do you suppose he's doing?"

Run, Red, Run

"Look. He seems to have ceased from his little ritual. He's taking off his shoes and he's picking that marble up. But wait a minute. Reverse psychology must be in effect. He's coming toward us. Maybe he is going to take his dislikes out on us. We better run."

"Hey, are you guys nuts or something? Who are you running from?"

"See that guy. He's going to throw that marble at us."

"Marble?"

"Well, isn't that what it is?"

"You guys must be confused. That guy is a bowler. All he is doing is returning the bowling shoes and pay for his game. You see, bowling is relatively new on this campus as I'm sure you must know."

"How much would it cost us if we went out there and tried to knock down those bones?"

As of December 3, bowling at the University of Omaha has been dropped to .35 per line.

"I'll take a size 17 shoe and give my friend a 16 1/2."

Better Start Warming Up Boys, Intramural Wrestling Up Next

In the second half, the pattern was continued and the Fremoners opened the lead as OU tried desperately to come back.

Fouls plagued the Indians as they collected 23 to the Warriors' 12 and lost Paul Kaster and Jon Lloyd via the foul route.

Lloyd finally cracked the scoring drouth which hurt him in the Indians' opener and paced all scorers with 21 points.

Kaster and Larry Villnow were handcuffed for the evening and finished with 5 and 6 points respectively.

Runnerup scoring honors went to Charlie Meyers who totaled 10 points on five buckets.

The loss evened OU's record at 1-1. The Indians journey to Peru State tonight to face the Bobcats. The state college crew has dropped both of their games so far, losing 88-61 to OU victim Simpson, and 71-54 to Tarrio College of Missouri.

Intramural wrestling matches, all single elimination will be held on December 11 in the Field House. Finals are scheduled on December 14 as a preliminary to the Omaha U. and Colorado Mines varsity showdown.

All weigh-ins are scheduled from 9 til 12 in the Field House Athletic Training Room on December 10. Mr. Bert Kurth, Director of Intramurals plans to have eight weight divisions, 123 lb., 137 lb., 147 lb., 157 lb., 167 lb., 177 lb., 191 lb., and heavyweight. Wrestling will begin after weigh-ins at 1 p.m.

Pall Mall Presents~ GIRL WATCHER'S GUIDE

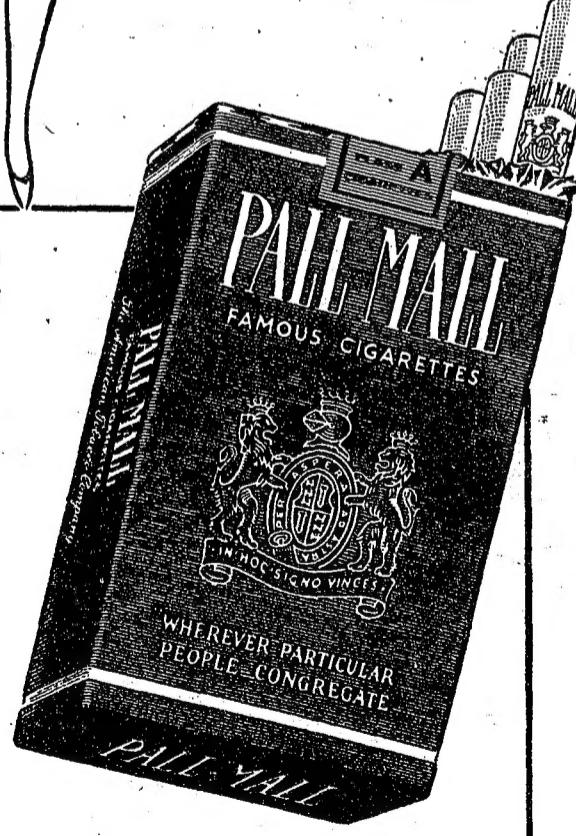

CAMPUS TYPE V

The natural habitat of the Cupcake is the Home Economics kitchen. She believes, as her mother did, that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. While this viewpoint might be considered unsophisticated by many of today's more enlightened male students, none of them has ever been known to turn down a tin of her Fudge-Frosted Nut-Filled Brownies. She really has a way with a dish and, as you can see, she's quite a dish herself.

Just as the Cupcake has found the perfect recipe for Frosted Brownies, the makers of Pall Mall have found the perfect recipe for a delicious smoke. Taste Pall Mall's natural mildness and see what we mean.

Pall Mall's natural mildness is so good to your taste!

So smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!
